This fourth edition features an accent on Lladro's "O" and a brand symbol. This mark was engraved on the bottom of the figurines and remained in use until 1963. With over 600 colour photographs and 2,000 advertisements, this title offers a complete overview of Lladro porcelain, an elegant, romantic, handcrafted and refined porcelain, instantly recognizable in its shades of blue, cream, grey and brown. Enthusiastic author, she has awarded Lladro pieces for Price Guide to Contemporary Collectibles and Limited Edition. Similar to the previous identification marks, this trademark has been affixed to the bottom of the figurine. Compare the requested price with the same or similar pieces in the online marketplace. She has been collecting Lladro for years and has been relentless in seeking information on these exquisite pieces. Lladro Identification Mark for Collector's Items A special Lladro mark has been printed on the porcelain figurines originally designed for members of the Lladro Collectors Society. This stamp was blue and bears the inscription "Collectors Society 1998" around the outside of the Lladro logo with the bellflower. Peggy Whitneck returns to provide names and serial numbers to help readers identify specific items in their collection; information on the various brands that allow collectors to estimate the age of a piece and authenticate it; information on what makes a piece valuable on the aftermarket. This was added due to the fact that the company now operates as a subsidiary of Lladro. The sixth Lladro identification mark from 1984 to 1989 Very similar to the previous trademark, the sixth Lladro identification mark was used from 1984 to 1989. The flower is included for its importance in Spain, where the company Lladro was born and 0791 0791 la onif 4691 ordalL, enoizacifitnedi id oihracm odnoces II .alligraalled erdam alla e arutan alla oiggamo to the first official marking. Lladro introduced a new company identification in 1964. There are many websites that specialize in selling authentic Lladro works of art. The words çÀÀValenciaçÀÀ and çÀÀEspañnaçÀÀ also appear within these marking which are thought to relate to the later 1960 identification wording; çÀÀMade in SpainçÀÀ. The Third Lladro Identification MarkÀ çÀÀ 1971 until 1974 In 1971, the old impressed markings were replaced with a blue-black stamp. "About this title" may belong to another edition of this title. It is best to always buy Lladro ornaments from a reputable source. This stamp originated in 1990 and is still used on Lladro figurines today. Prior to investing in a Lladro Ornament Ask to see the bottom of the Lladro figurine. Start your review of Collecting Lladro: Price & Identification Guide Includes photos from my personal collection! The Lladro company, created by brothers Juan, JosÀÀ and Vicente LladroÀÀ began with their first porcelain creation in 1953. A Lladro ornament that was made after 1960 that lacks an identification mark is most likely a counterfeit piece. This identification mark is the first time the Bell-flower was used which remained a staple Lladro logo until the present. As the years went on the Bell-flower became more intricate. This further investment of time by the three brothers, led to the expansion of their company and a Lladro identification mark was officially introduced in 1960. Identifying the Age of a Lladro Ornament Although the Lladro company is young in comparison to other well-known porcelain designers, often ornament owners are interested in finding out when their piece was created.À Many Lladro pieces can be aged according to their unique çÀÀIdentification MarkeÀÀ.À The identification mark on the bottom of a Lladro figurine also strengthens the authentication of the piece. It wasneÀÀ until 1958 that the brothers moved their company to a warehouse near Blanques and began working full time on their porcelain ornaments. This particular stamp was used from 1971 to 1974 and appeared on the bottom of Lladro's pieces. There is speculation around more different identification marks that might appear on Lladro pieces produced before 1960. Make sure the part serial number is included in the range for the limited number of products. Lives in East Randolph, Vermont. This marking had the name Thief at the top with the first à - ÀlÀç à ç underlining the rest of the word. Under the word à ÀlladroÀç à ç, the identification Read: À "ÀSESPANNA À" AND à "À DADE IN SPAIN À." The following three identification marks are confirmed to be part of different pieces produced before 1960: the first official Lladro identification mark - à - À - 1960 until 1963 the first official Lladro brand appeared on porcelain figurines in 1960.
